THE M'KINLEY TARIFF.

E. L. Godkin, in the Forum, says: "If the republicans elect the president next fall and have a majority in both Houses, they will probably pass something like the old McKinley tariff bill, and they will generally suppose that this will bring in an era of prosperity; but it will not do so any more than the old McKinley tariff which led to the terrible defeat of 1890. It will be full of excesses and abuses, which will bring about another reaction and there will then be in a few years another kind of tariff with a similar result. Prosperity will wait for a settlement of the currency question. Once a community adopts the plan of getting rich by legislation it bids good-by to steadiness. No matter what acts are passed, the mass of the population remains poor or fails in business, and then lays the blame on the legislation or on the legislators, and tries new men or new measures. It has always been so, and will always be so. The government of the day is always responsible for both the weather and the crops, and this alone will make McKinley's election a national misfortune. It is not that he will make a protective tariff that we fear, but that he will make another tariff which people will not put up with very long.

M'KINLEY VS. HARRISON.

Mr. McKinley will probably be the choice of the people at St. Louis. The decision of Illinois, where that state's favorite son was laid on the shelf, was final. The chances of Speaker Reed have been dead for some time. Mr. Reed is a large and powerful man, mentally and physically, but he is too domineering and arrogant to have the following of the politicians. Reed, Morton, Quay, Allison and Harrison recognize that the only chance is in combination. It looks as though the strength of the various candidates, should McKinley not be nominated on the first ballot, will be thrown to Harrison. Morton's candidacy was simply a makeshift for the New York politicians. It was not recognized with any solemnity except by Morton.

Quay's endorsement in Pennsylvania was simply to be used as a motor for the advancement of the plans of that political boss.

There have never been any prominent republican candidates excepting McKinley and Reed. Friends of the latter now regard his chances as hopeless. His strength will go to Harrison if the ice-wagon man has any show of winning. A Reed representative has already been selected to deliver the votes should McKinley not win on the first ballot. There is no harmony, for the political leaders are against the sentiment of the rank and file of the party.

THE "NEW WOMAN."

The "New Woman," as she is termed, may be a fair target for the shafts of ridicule in some respects, but, on the other hand, much of the current talk about the danger of women becoming unsexed in thoughts and tastes is absolute nonsense. Underlying this talk is the gratuitous assumption that whatever is masculine is vicious and should be sedulously shunned by the opposite sex. Such teaching is to be deprecated, for its tendency is to erect a different standard of moral conduct for men and women. It not only makes guilt of a thing or action which in itself may be perfectly harmless, but operates to cripple and crush the energies of the feminine sex.

What is it that constitutes womanliness? Put this question to a Patagonian or a Matabele and the answer would probably shock the average American or Englishman. Put to a Puritan of the Cromwellian period it would have produced a different reply from that which a courtier of the era of Restoration would have offered. A peasant of the lower class in Europe and Asia regards his wife as merely "something better than his dog, a little dearer than his horse." This standard of womanliness is a varying quantity. It differs not only between age and age and nation and nation, but between class and class. It is shaped by customs, circumstances and necessities.

It is manifestly absurd to judge the acts of women of the present time by the conventionalities which prevailed in ages past. The fact that women are now occupying positions and battling for opportunities which have hitherto been arbitrarily supposed to belong to the other sex does not imply that they are growing unwomanly. It is chiefly an index of changed social conditions, and a greater degree of self-dependence on the part of the feminine sex. Rational freedom is as wholesome and no one will object to it but those who are super-nice.

A recent dispatch stated that Wm. Boyd Rankin, who died in New Jersey, was the first governor of Washington during territorial days. This is clearly wrong. Major Isaac Stevens was the first governor of Washington, being appointed in 1853 by President Pierce; J. Patton Anderson was appointed in 1857 by President Buchanan, but he did not qualify; Fayette McMullen, of Virginia, was then appointed governor, and resigned at the end of two years; then, in 1859, Richard D. Gholson was appointed. He was succeeded by Col. W. H. Wallace, who being elected delegate to congress in 1861, did not qualify, and he by Wm. Pickering, who was succeeded in 1866 by George E. Cole, Marshall F. Moore, Alvan Flanders, Edward F. Saloman, Elisha P. Ferry, William A. Newell, Watson C. Squire, Eugene Semple and Miles C. Moore complete the list of governors down to 1889, when statehood was assumed.

A St. Paul minister recently preached a sermon against women riding bicycles. Such attempts on the part of the clergy to interefere with legitimate pleasure never avail anything. The girls will pay no attention to his admonitions, but keep right on using the wheel. A great many ministers of the gospel are ardent bicyclers. There cannot be anything wrong in Christian women taking exercise on the bicycle. There is nothing immodest in it—nothing that detracts from true womanliness. It is quite probable that this St. Paul clergyman, being unable to master a bicycle himself, objects to its use by others.

It is wonderful the change that has been made in the silver sentiments of local republicans of late. It was only a short time ago, when, with but few exceptions, they favored the white metal, but, after receipt of orders from headquarters, they have taken to gold with a loving fondness which is somewhat surprising.

Senator Tillman continues to stir up things with his pitchfork. Another old fellow has been going up and down the earth for thousands of years armed with a pitchfork, but he wears a cloven hoof and a forked tail and perfumes his handkerchief with brimstone. It looks as though he and Tillman had joined forces.

Ten young ladies of Pittsburg have organized into a society and resolved that they "will never marry men." This leaves a chance for native dudes and titled foreigners.

Assorted Candidates.

Chicago News: Mr. Bland's boom is having wonderful success in unpopulated districts.

Kansas City Journal: Mr. Cullom declares that he has not withdrawn from the race, and he is right. The race has withdrawn from Mr. Cullom.

Minneapolis Journal: Governor Grosvenor claims that McKinley has 314 of the St. Louis delegates up to date. This is a good start but he needs 21 more.

Baltimore American: Those who accuse Mr. Whitney of flirting with the Democratic Presidential nomination do him an injustice. He is no summer girl in national politics.

Syracuse Herald: The McKinley band wagon is pretty well filled, as an astute observer who is tooting in another procession remarked the other day, but there is still room for a few more.

Mr. Terrell and the Sultan.

Mr. Terrell's friends tell a good story of the familiar manner in which he talks to the sultan. It is said that while they were dining together at the palace his imperial majesty remarked that he regretted to learn that there were four newspapers in the United States which had published articles seriously reflecting on his administration, and he desired Mr. Terrell to write President Cleveland and ask him to suppress them. "Why," replied the envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the United States, "there are 35,000 newspapers printed in the United States, and everyone of them gives you ——every morning."

Mothers

Anxiously watch declining health of their daughters. So many are cut off by consumption in early years that there is real cause for anxiety. In the early stages, when not beyond the reach of medicine, Hood's Sarsaparilla will restore the quality and quantity of the blood and thus give good health. Read the following letter:

"It is but just to write about my daughter Cora, aged 19. She was completely run down, declining, had that tired feeling, and friends said she would not live over three months. She had a bad and nothing seemed to do her any good. I happened to read about Hood's Sarsaparilla and had her give it a trial. From the very first dose she began to get better. After taking a few bottles she was completely cured and her health has been the best ever since." MRS. ADDIE PECK, 12 Railroad Place, Amsterdam, N. Y.

"I will say that my mother has not stated my case in as strong words as I would have done. Hood's Sarsaparilla has truly cured me and I am now well." CORA PECK, Amsterdam, N. Y.

AN ASCENT OF MOUNT ARARAT.

The View From the Summit of the Mountain of the Ark.

At last we stood upon the summit of Ararat, but the sun no longer pierced the white vapor; a fierce gale drove across the forbidden region and whipped the eye, straining to distinguish the limits of snow and cloud. Vague forms hurried past on the winds of the whirlwind; in place of the landscape of the land of promise we searched dense banks of fog.

We were standing on the spot where the ark of gopher rested, where first the patriarch alighted on the face of an earth renewed. Before him lay the valleys of 600 years of sorrow. The airiest pinnacle supported him; a boundless hope filled his eyes. The pulse of life beat strong and fresh around him; the busy swarms thrilled with sweet freedom, elect of all living things. In the settling exhalations stood the bow of many colors, eternal token of God's covenant with man.

Although the summit of Great Ararat, which has an elevation of 17,916 feet, yields in height to the peaks of the Caucasus in the north and to Demavend (19,400 feet) in the east, nearly 500 miles away, yet, as Bryce in his admirable book has observed, there can be but few other places in the world where a mountain so lofty rises from a plain so low. The summit of Great Ararat has the form of a dome and is covered with perpetual snow; this dome crowns an oval figure, the length of which is from northwest to southeast, and it is therefore the long side of this dome which you see from the valley of the Araxes. On the southeast, as you follow the outline farther, the slope falls at a more rapid gradient of from 30 to 35 degrees and ends in the saddle between the two mountains at a height of nearly 9,000 feet.

From that point it is the shape of the Little Ararat, which continues the outline toward the east. It rises in the shape of a graceful pyramid to the height of 12,840 feet, and its summit is distant from that of Great Ararat a space of nearly seven miles. The southeastern slope of the lesser Ararat corresponds to the northwestern slope of the greater mountain and descends to the floor of the river valley in a long and regular train. The unity of the whole fabric, the intimate correspondence of the parts between themselves, in a word the architectural qualities of this natural work at once impress the eye and continue to provide an inexhaustible fund of study, however long may be the period of your stay.—Scribner's.

Wound Steam Pipes.

The plan of winding steam pipes over eight inches in diameter with three-sixteenths inch copper wire, thus nearly doubling the bursting pressure, is pronounced by competent judges to be an important change in engineering practice. Further, that the thickness of sheet copper forming the pipe may be reduced to the minimum, and at the same time insuring the full advantage of wire winding, an improved system of manufacturing steam pipes has been devised, described as consisting in simply using copper of the thinnest possible gauge to form the interior or core of the pipe, while the body proper is composed of steel wire wound closely around the core, the interstices being filled in solid with copper by electro deposition. Increased strength comes from wire winding.—New York Sun.

Signatures of Two Presidents.

Charles Moore, a clerk in the Adams express office, possesses a parchment deed issued at the Zanesville (O.) land office on June 20, 1811, to Thomas Honeboard, granting him the northeast quarter section of lot 12 of township 18 in range 15 of the lands directed to be sold at Zanesville by the act of congress entitled "An act providing for the sale of United States lands in the territory northwest of the Ohio and above the mouth of the Kentucky river." To the deed are attached the signatures of President James Madison and Secretary of State James Monroe, and on the opposite lower corner is affixed the official seal of the government.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Improving an Old Master.

This is true, though you will not believe it. A distinguished, but very Philistine lady, who has in her possession a rare and beautiful "old master," has hitherto kept the picture in her gallery, because she did not consider "the nude" suitable for exhibition in a drawing room. The other day she asked her German governess—an amateur artist—to paint clothing on to the figures. Now the picture has a place of honor in her drawing room. I am told the effect is rather extraordinary.—London Gentlewoman.

Had Some Familiarity With Both.

"What is the biggest game in your country?" inquired the English tourist with the gun on his shoulder.

"Moose and politics," replied the lank American who was sitting on the fence and whittling a stick.—Chicago Tribune.

Mothers

Remember that Castoria does not contain Morphine, Opium, or any other narcotic substance, in any quantity, shape or form. It is entirely vegetable, pleasant to take, positively effective, and perfectly harmless. It is not a secret remedy; the formula is printed on the wrapper. Your hpysician will recommend it. Paregoric, Bateman's Drops, and many so called Soothing Syrups, are composed principally of Opium or Morphine; in any quantity they stupefy, and in large quantities are deadly poisons. Castoria assimulates the food and regulates the bowels, cures diarrhœa, allays feverishness and freetfulness, soothes the pain in teething, relieves constipation and kills worms. It brings refreshing and natural sleep to the child, and gives rest to the mother.

"Castoria is so well adapted to infants and children, that I recommend it as superior to any other known remedy."

DR. H. A. ARCHER,
111 S. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.
March 8, 1887.

"From personal knowledge and observation I can say that Castoria is an excellent medicine for children, acting as a laxative and relieving the pent up bowels and general system very much. Many mothers have told me of its excellent effect upon their children."
